Seller may, at its own discretion and with discharging effect, supply replacement product instead of performing a repair. In order to prevent supply bottlenecks, Buyer shall be required to maintain appropriate stocks.

- 11.3. If Seller fails to remedy within an appropriate period of time breaches of the duty of care and/or defects that were reported in a timely manner by Buyer, Buyer shall have the right, under exclusion of all further claims, to deduct from the owed price an amount corresponding to the reduced value. Demands for refund of previously remitted payments shall be precluded.
- 11.4. Buyer shall be responsible for payment of the full agreed price, even if it asserts a warranty claim. Deductions are not permitted except in cases of price reduction.

- 11.7. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions, no warranty claims and claims for damages shall apply with regard to prototypes, pilot production items, initial batch items, etc. In addition, Buyer must sufficiently test such prototypes, pilot production items, initial batch items, etc. In the event of a breach of this duty, Seller shall be released from any and all liability. In particular, Buyer shall bear sole responsibility for the risks associated with premature serial production. - 11.17. Buyer must purchase appropriate liability insurance and disclose evidence of such insurance to Seller upon demand.
- 11.18. Defects may be remedied by Seller only. Should Buyer attempt to remedy any defects itself, or should it involve third parties for this purpose, Seller's responsibility shall be precluded. Should changes or repairs be made to contractual products without the consent of Seller, all liability shall be precluded unless Seller is at least responsible for gross negligence with respect to the occurrence of the defect and/or loss.

- 11.21. Seller shall be liable for performance by third parties only to the extent of the warranty and liability of the third-party service provider, but its liability shall not exceed the scope defined in this Clause 11. Seller's liability for its agents and servants shall be completely precluded.
- 12. LIMITATION OF LIABILITY
